Bahá'ís of the United States

The National Spiritual Assembly is the nine-member, national governing council of the U.S. Bahá'í community. It is elected annually at a national convention. The offices of the National Spiritual Assembly are in Evanston, Illinois, near the Bahá'í House of Worship. Most nations and a few territories have a National Spiritual Assembly elected by the Bahá'ís of that jurisdiction.

Members of the Bahá'í Faith treat images of the Founders with extreme reverence and consider it disrespectful for such images to be published. When referring to the Báb or Bahá'u'lláh it would be most appropriate to use an image of their respective burial shrine.
